A SPLENDID ADDRESS

John Barrett, Director General of Pan-American Union, Speaks Before Large Assemblage last Night

The Young Peoples' Building was packed to its utmost capacity with a representative audience last night to hear the Hon. John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union, speak on "The Trenches." Miss Helen Norris Cumming introduced Mr. Barrett in a most graceful and gracious manner, remarking that the Chamber of Commerce of Chicago, the board of trade of New York and the Cameron Club of Alexandria all wanted Mr. Barrett the same evening, and she was glad to say the latter won.

Mr. Barrett has a splendid delivery and, one of the most excellent things in a speaker, a well modulated and cultivated voice. He first gave an outline of the meaning of the Pan-American Union, the subject nearest his heart, as an introduction to his remarks about the European war, for he said if there had been "Pan", meaning all, European conferences such as meets every month in the Pan-American building in Washington, this war would have been averted. Mr. Barrett gave some most interesting and instructive facts about this union and its wonderful work.

"The Trenches," a subject of interest to the entire world at this time, were painted in the most realistic words by Mr. Barrett, and the large audience present listened to his utterances without a sound, so as not to lose a word of his wonderful descriptions. His description of a Zeppelin raid he witnessed while in London, was of intense interest. The applause at the conclusion of the lecture was tremenduous but during the discourse the entire audience seemed afraid of losing a word the speaker uttered. There would be a ripple of applause but it hushed the instant Mr. Barrett spoke.

Mr. Robert S. Jones entertained at a delightful reception for Mr. Barrett, at his home in North Washington street, immediately after the lecture. Receiving with Mr. Barrett and Mr. Jones were Miss Constance Boush and Miss Helen Norris Cummins. The decorations were LaFrance roses and asparagus ferns. Mrs. John Leadbeater served fruit punch, Mrs. William Jackson Morton presided at the coffee urn, and Miss Kathrin Griffith Uhler served the salad. The young girls who assisted were Miss Collins McKay Jones, Miss Isobel Boswell, Miss Sarah Cox, Miss Carol Leadbeater, Miss Julia Benton Hopkins and Miss Nina Fulton.

AUTOISTS IN CUSTODY

Washingtonians Arrested at an Early Hour This Morning Charged With Violating Prohibition Law.

About two o'clock this morning Sergeant Scott and Officers Miller, Campbell, Reid and Kerns, who were on duty at the time, had their attention attracted by the actions of three strangers who were passing through certain streets in an automobile. They finally stopped in front of a lunch house on King street and requested the proprietor to loan them a glass. Sergeant Scott and the officers with him made a search and found a quart bottle of "Shoreham" whisky in the pocket of J. Bryan, one of the trio. The others gave their names as L. Brown and W. A. Adams, all claiming Washington as their homes. The three men were taken in custody upon the charge of bringing liquor into the state.

The accused were later released upon collateral for their appearance before the Police Court this morning. They had in the meantime employed Robinson Moncure to defend them.

After Sergeant Scott had made his statement to the court this morning Bryan, from whose pocket the whisky had been taken stated that he and his companions left Washington at 1 o'clock this morning for the purpose of visiting Alexandria and obtaining something to eat. Before leaving the capital city he purchased the bottle of whisky from the Shoreham Hotel. He alleged that it was not the intention of the party to drink the liquor in Virginia nor to violate the prohibition law. It was his purpose he alleged, to take the liquor home with him. The bottle was full and there was no evidence to show that any of its contents had been drunk.

Justice Caton read a section of the prohibition law which he construed as covering the case, which allows the transportation of liquor by the owner, when not in unlawful quantities, from one point to another in the state, and also applies to parties living outside the state who do not use the liquor in the state, nor bring the same into the state in their baggage for the purpose of violating any of the provisions of the prohibition law. He therefore dismissed the accused.

FIGHT IN A GALLERY

Exciting Scene in Third Colored Baptist Church Last Night

There was a large gathering last night in the Third Baptist Church (colored) at the corner of Princess and Patrick streets, where an entertainment was given. The festivities were closing when a fight took place in the gallery between William Lucas and Irwin Fawcett, two young negroes. The difficulty is said to have been precipitated by one questioning the veracity of the other in regard to a young colored woman. The combattants were at times rolling on the floor together, and officers of the church appeared on the scene and attempted to pull the belligerents apart. The combattants were rolling near a window which was close to the floor, and it was feared that both would force their way through and land in the back yard. They were finally overpowered and kept apart, and were later arrested by Officers Roland and Bell.

The two men were brought before the Police Court this morning when charges and countercharges were made as to the origin of the difficulty. Justice Caton fined them $5 each.

TIPSY STRANGER

Resident of Orange Arraigned for Being Drunk Upon the Street

Upon being arraigned this morning before the Police Court he alleged that he resided in Orange, that he purchased the liquor in Washington and concluded to stop in Alexandria on his way home. He was fined $5.

LATE BISHOP WILSON

Many Expressions of Regret Heard in Alexandria, Where He Occasionally Visited.

The death in Baltimore yesterday of Bishop Alpheus Waters Wilson, one of the most revered and best known preacher of the South and for more than a generation perhaps the most important figure in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was announced in yesterday's Gazette. The news was received in this city with many expressions of sorrow, as the bishop was well-known in Alexandria, where he had often appeared during his long life.

For years he had been the oldest bishop in his church, both in years and in service. He was acknowledged as the founder of its foreign missions and was regarded by thousands as its most eloquent pulpit orator. He was bishop 34 years and preached 64.

For the last month he had been in the South, attending conferences and preaching and visiting friends and for the last few days had been a guest at the home of Bishop Collins Denny in Richmond, Va., attending the Virginia annual conference and other meetings. He had preached on Sunday and started home alone, as usual on his long and frequent trips.

Before he reached Baltimore he realized he was failing in strength and probably threatened with pneumonia, but by sheer will power, his family believes, he held himself in hand and managed to call a taxicab unaided and reach his home. The chauffeur helped him into the house and it was at once realized his condition was serious. Dr. Henry F. Hill was summoned and the last fight for his life was begun. He was conscious shortly before death came.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon and burial will be in Loudon Park Cemetery, Baltimore. Representatives from the M. E. Church South of Alexandria will attend the funeral.

His wife died in 1908, Surviving are one sister, Mrs. Belle Gallaher, of Charles Town, W. Va.; three daughters, Miss Maybelle Wilson, Miss Nina Wilson and Mrs. William L. Weber, all of whom lived with him; three grand-children, Wilson, Cecil and Miss Dorothy Weber, and two sisters-in-laws, Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald and Mrs. George Taylor, Miss Nina Havenner, a niece, also lived at his home. His favorite nephew, the Rev. Dr. Franck Havenner, of Westminster, Md., died just two months ago, on the same day and at almost the same hour.

Almost since the baginning of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Bishop Wilson had been one of its most important figures, and his work possibly had a greater influence on its wonderful development than that of any other one man.

He was born in Baltimore, on February 5, 1834, and was just 18 years of age when licensed to preach by the Baltimore District Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was the son of the Rev. Norval and Cornelia Howland Wilson. He successfully stood the examination of a degree of Columbia (now George Washington) University before he was legally old enough to receive it. He was admitted into the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1853, and in 1857 he married Miss Susan B. Lipscomb, of West Virginia, daughter of a Methodist preacher.

At the outbreak of the civil war, he went with the Baltimore Conference into the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was the leading Southern minister in Baltimore throughout the war and founded Trinity, the first Southern Methodist church there. He was constantly under suspicion, as his Southern sympathies were open, and his life and liberty were threatened many times.

Right after the war his health failed and for three years he practiced law, though still preaching as occasion offered, and this was the only break in his 64 years of ministerial service until the Sunday before his death.

In 1878 he was elected secretary to the Board of Missions, and in May, 1882, was elected bishop. In his years as mission secretary and as mission bishop he practically founded the foreign missions of his church. He made episcopal tours around the world in 1886, 1883 and 1890; to Japan, Korea, and China in 1898-1900; was in China in the Boxer uprising and again in 1907.

He was delegate to the Ecumenical Methodist Conference in London in 1881 and again in 1901, in Washington in 1891 and in Toronto in 1911. He visited Brazil on mission trips in 1892 and 1903, He was relieved of active duty n 1914, but continued on many important committees and in touch with the work of the church generally. He recently returned from a trip as far West as Texas, He was author of only one book, "Missions: Witnesses to Christ," delivered as the Cole lectures at Vanderbilt University.

LOUIS HOLLAR LOCATED

Missing Former Soldier Found in Martinsburg, West Virginia

Louis Hollar, a former member of the Alexandria Light Infantry, who started for the Mexican border soon after under going an operation but who was compelled to return after having reached Richmond, is said to be in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Hollar, it will be remembered, disappeared recently from the Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, and his whereabouts being unknown to his relatives caused them much anxiety.

Washington policemen had been searching the woods near the hospital for some time, as it was supposed he could not have gone far from that institution, as he wore only his pajamas when he disappeared. It is not known at present how he managed to make his way to West Virginia.

The Alexandria police, who have also been searching for the missing man, were notified today that he had been located.

FELL INTO STATION HOUSE

Intoxicated Negro Stumbles Into the Arms of Officer Bettis

At a late hour last night, Officer Bettis, who was on duty at the station house, was surprised when a negro named William Williams opened the door and fell in. The officer approached him and discovered that the darkey was helplessly drunk. He locked him up, and this morning Williams was brought before the Police Court. After the testimony of the officer had been given, Williams was asked if he had anything to say. His answers were laconic. He said he did not know where he obtained the liquor from the effects of which he was still suffering. He was sentenced to serve three months in jail, subject to the roads.

FRANCIS JOSEPH DEAD

Octogenarian Austrian Emperor Succumbs at Early Hour Yesterday Morning.

Vienna, Nov. 22—Emperor Francis Joseph is dead.

Early this morning the aged Emperor's physicians, who throughout the day had issued bulletins, made the announcement that the Monarch had at last succumbed. Outside the palace a huge throng stood anxiously waiting since early in the afternoon, the Emperor's condition had been officially declared to be "worse."

Like wild-fire the news spread through the capital and the tolls of all the city churches, joining in a solemn chorus, awakened Vienna's people to the fact that the long-expected end had at last come. The Emperor was 87 years old.

Then there occurred a curious phychological phenomen.

No sooner had the first shock of excitement passed— well exploited by the newspapers through extra editions issued every few minutes—than the people of Vienna appeared more calm, more sober and more settled than probably at any time since the beginning of the war. A deep sadness lay upon all male faces amid the throngs that beseiged the palace. Women, sobbed, but there was no hysterical outcry, no panicky pushing two and fro, no faintings.

It was as if all Vienna, and with the capital the whole empire, breathed a deep sigh of relief.

So long had this event been looked for, so often had it been predicted, reported, denied—and so tense was the atmosphere during the last forty-eight hours—that human nature had become all predominant — it had come to crave the very opposite of what it feared.

The Emperor's death comes within a few short weeks before the date—early next month—on which he had decided to confer upon Archduke Karl Franz Joseph, the Austro-Hungarian throne heir the right of co-regent.

Charles Francis Joseph, a grand nephew of the dead Emperorr succeeds to the throne. He is 29 years old and has been commanding the Austrian troops on the Transylvanian front.

Charles Francis Joseph is a nephew of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, who with his wife was slain at Sarajevo, June 28, 1914, by a 19 years old Serbian. This double murder led to the war now raging.

Until he was brought to the forefront as heir apparent by the tragedy, Charles Francis was little known outside of his own country. Had Emperor Francis Joseph lived, Charles Francis would have become co-regent with him on December 2.

DEUTSCHLAND DEPARTS.

Submarine Carries a Cargo Valued at Two Million Dollars

New London, Nov. 22.—The German subsea freighter Deutschland started on her adventurous voyage across the Atlantic at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. By nightfall she was well outside the three-mile limit and speeding on her 4,000 mile trip.

An hour after leaving her pier the submarine passed through the treacherous waters of "The Race," where five days ago she collided with the escorting tug. Every possible precaution was taken to prevent a recurrence of that disaster which resulted in the loss of five lives.

On her ill-starred departure five days ago the Deutschland slid out of her pier in the dead of the night, with the T. A. Scott, jr., going ahead to guide her.

She was followed out to sea by the T. A. Scott Company's tug Alert, press boats and a cutter from the U. S. cruiser Columbia. Her departure was the signal for the most remarkable demonstration that has ever ruffled the calm of this quiet Connecticut seaport. Thousands lined the banks of the picturesque Thames River to witness her departure.

In the submarine's hold were stored $2,000,000 worth of cargo, consisting of crude rubber, tin, nickel, and other ore.

Mrs. Annie E. Deakins, widow of Dennis E. Deakins, died suddenly in Washington on Monday.

CLOSING OF A STORMY LIFE.

The cry, "Le roi est mort! Vive le roi!" is again heard in Austria. The Emperor Francis Joseph is dead. Recently the aged Emperor—he was 86 years old—had drawn on several occasions near the unseen world, but, to the joy of those whose interests it was to keep him away from the grim reaper as long a possible, he had backed away. Yesterday, however, the wheels of life stood still, and he is now no longer an interested party in the titanic struggle which is devastating Europe. He has been succeeded by the nephew of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, whose assassination was the origin of the war.

It is doubtful if in all history there has been an active, authenticated reign longer than that closed by the death of Francis Joseph.

At 19 years of age he ascended the throne of Austria upon the abdication of his uncle, Ferdinand I, December 2, 1848, his death ending an active reign of nearly 68 years, all but the first 20, of which he was also Apostolic King of Hungary.

But in human interest his personal sorrows overshadowed all. One after another they came upon him. In 1853 the list of tragic incidents began with an attempt upon his own life and sorrow followed sorrow.

His wife "the good Elizabeth," was stabbed in Switzerland by an anarchist. His brother Maximilian was executed in Mexico. His only son, Rudolph, was found dead in a cottage with the Baroness Vetera. His sister-in-law, the Duchess D'Alencon, was burned to death at a charity ball in Paris. His favorite grandchild married against his wishes, and her love ended in the shooting of her rival and the heir presumptive to the throne, Archduke Franz Ferdinand, and his wife were assassinated, bringing on the great European war of 1914.

The career of Francis Joseph was but another illustration of the truth of the observation of Shakespeare—"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

DEMOCRATIC GAIN 13 PER CT.

Premature misgivings as to the decline of the Democratic party's strength in Virginia, conjured up by incomplete returns which appeared to indicate a falling off in the total vote, were dissipated yesterday by the complete figures from the Secretary of the Commnowealth's office.

On November 7 the Democrats cast 102,823 votes for the highest elector on the ticket, as against 90,332 votes cast for the highest Democratic elector in 1912, an increase for the presidential year of 1916 of 12,491 votes, or more than 13 per cent. The Republicans on November 7 cast 49,358 votes for their highest elector, as against 45,014 votes polled jointly by the highest Roosevelt and Taft electors in 1912. The Republican gain this year, therefore, was 4,344 votes, or a little over 9 per cent.

In 1908 the Democrats polled 82,946 votes, against the Republicans 52,573, the Democratic plurality being 30,373. The Democratic plurality this year was 53,465.

The practice of scratching individual electors, which has resulted in recent years in divided electoral votes in Maryland and California, appears to be making little headway in Virginia. In the last election the highest Democratic elector received 102,823 votes, while the lowest received 102,789 votes—a difference of only 25. Only 31 votes separated the highest and lowest Republican electors. Since under the present laws Virginia can send a divided delegation to the electoral collage only when one or more of the electors of the majority party receive fewer votes than electors of the minority, the danger of a split electoral delegation from Virginia is in the last degree remote.

POST BELLUM REMINISCENCE.

A Richmond cotemporary, which republishes occasionally items from its files of half a century ago, yesterday contained the following:

Fred Douglass has bought a house in Alexandria and proposes to make that town his home in the future. It was supposed that Alexandria has as many half-breed niggers as it can well accommodate.

Douglass made a visit to Alexandria during the latter part of the civil war, on which occasion he delivered a lecture. We never knew he purchased a house in this city, or purposed to take up his residence here. Douglass reappeared here during the latter part of the eighties and delivered a lecture in Roberts Chapel on "Self-made men."

During the seventies Douglass was one of a commission appointed by the government to visit the Danish West India Islands, the United States at that time seriously considering the purchase of the same from Denmark. He returned home via Richmond. At that time the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad had its northern terminus at Aquia Creek, and it was customary to take dinner on the steamer Keyport, which transported passengers from Aquia Creek to Alexandria and Washington. The late Senator Sumner was a member of the commission, and on the way up the river the party entered the dining saloon and ordered dinner. Douglass was told he would be required to wait for the second table. This not only exasperated Douglass, but his companions also. Senator Sumner became very indignant, and refused to be seated unless his mulatto companion was allowed to do so. The officers of the steamer were inexorable, and the members of the commission refused to take dinner on the boat, and waited until they reached Washington where they broke their fast.

Shortly before the civil war, when the negro question was greatly debated in this country, Douglass was invited to deliver a lecture in a northern city. His subject was "Emancipation," during the delivery of which he denounced slavery in unmistakable terms. At the close of the lecture no one of the committee who had invited Douglass to deliver the lecture, although they were abolitionists, invited the speaker to partake of his hospitality for the night, and Douglass sought a hotel. He was refused lodging and seemed destined pass the night in the street. A southern man and a political enemy of Douglass and the republican party, having heard of the predicament in which the mulatto had been placed, invited him to his house where he furnished him with a supper and a bed and the next morning with breakfast.

HIS EFFORTS APPRECIATED

Many Alexandrians who heard John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American Union, deliver an address in the Second Presbyterian Church several years ago determined that should he ever make a second appearance in this city they would be on hand to greet him. Most of them were in the Young People's Building last night to hear him speak on "The Trenches." He previously spoke on the "Possibilities of South America," and the speaker enlightened his hearers by directing their attention to the remarkable expansion of the southern republics in recent years. His address was educational and was greatly enjoyed. His theme last night was equally interesting and he was listened to with close attention by a large and appreciative audience.

DIPSOMANIAC'S FRIEND

"If any man doubts that candy will relieve the drink habit," says the Medical World under recent date, "he can easily test it."

This paper goes on: "The man who puts lots of molasses on his wheat cakes at breakfast will find himself gradually forgetting to stop in for his customary drink on his way to work. If the man who 'goes out' between times for liquid refreshments will go into a candy store instead and get five or ten cents worth of candy and eat it, he will be surprised at the effect. It will not be very long until he will have candy on his desk and carry it in his pockets. Not one man in a hundred knows why he forgot to go out and see a man when attending the theatre, if he had bought a box of candy for his companion and eaten a little of it himself for politeness' sake."

I have known many men who were accustomed to the use of alcoholic stimulants, and among them I have never known a man who cared anything for candy. The reason for this is simple: Sugar taken into the system is acted on by the digestive fluids, fermented and thereby produces a mild alcoholic ferment, which while not in the least harmful, supplies elements absolutely necessary in the human economy in producing bodily warmth and blood vitality. The moderate eating of candy at frequent intervals will absolutely relieve the alcoholic craving as no other thing will do, and this information is of such vital importance that it ought to be given the widest publicity to insure the greatest benefit to those who need it most.

NEWS OF THE DAY

Gottlieb von Jagow, German minister of foreign affairs, has resigned according to a Berlin dispatch. The condition of his health is given as the cause of his resignation. Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, undersecretary of foreign affairs, the dispatch adds, probably will succeed Herr von Jagow. The Tageblatt prints a rumor that Herr von Jagow will become ambassador at Vienna.

It is announced officially that 341 persons have been killed and 667 persons injured in an explosion at Bakaritza, Russia.

Charles E. Hughes does not expect to live in Washington, if he cannot live in the White House. This became known yesterday, when he offered for sale his house at 2100 Sixteenth street northwest.

In his message to the legislature Gov. Hatfield, of West Virginia, asked the legislature to protect office holders from being removed from office regardless of their tenure by the incoming administration. The governor charged that "by methods as reprehensible as they are corrupt, by bribery open intimidation, and open repeating of unlawful voters in certain counties of the State, a desperate and unscrupulous effort to get possession of the executive machinery of the State has apparently succeeded."

Information received in Washington indicates that Great Britain is arming merchantmen with guns fore and aft. Although no merchant vessels with guns mounted forward have entered American ports, it is regarded as possible that they will be sent to the United States, If it is established that England is so arming her merchant craft, the State Department's instructions to port authorities relating to armed vessels will exclude them from American ports except as war vessels.

President Wilson's enthusiasm for out-door sports diminishes rapidly when aviation is concerned. Representative-elect Bleakley, of Franklin, Pa., who rode from Philadelphia to Washington Monday in his own aeroplane, yesterday afternoon called at the White House and invited the President to take a ride with him. "The President merely smiled," Mr. Bleakley said afterward.

Strong feeling amounting to a "quiet revolution," must be expected in Germany as a result of the edict proposing compulsory service for civilians in the "home army," says the Berliner Tageblatt in discussing the matter. Field Marshal von Hindenburg chief of the German general staff, has written another letter to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg expressing his belief that a certain amount of coercion is necessary for the solution of the food and labor problem.

It is said that about 1,200,000 persons in the United States have bought steerage tickets to return to Europe at the close of the war.

Severe earthquake shocks, lasting three-quarters of an hour, at some 2,200 miles distant from Washington were recorded very early yesterday morning at the Georgetown University observatory. The seismograph recorded the quake from 1:31 until 2:15 o'clock. The quake was of the class scienfically termed "very pronounced."

Gralova, vital nerve of the strategic railway net of Western Russia, fell to the army of Gen. von Falkenhayn at noon yesterday. Its loss is the most serious blow suffered by King Ferdinand's army since Roumania's intervention on the allies' side.

California's vote complete will give President Wilson a plurality of about 3,416, according to a check made by the Republican State central committee on the official returns from all but eight counties.

President Wilson will ignore in his message to Congress a score of petitions from the thickly populated districts of the East urging an embargo on food exports.

The German steamship Fritz Hugo has been wrecked in the Baltic by a boiler explosion with the loss of seven lives.

William Cluster, 18 years old, killed himself with a revolver in a Wellsville, Mo., jewelry store. Disappointment over the defeat of Hughes was ascribed by Cluster's friends as the cause of the suicide.

A wireless dispatch from Berne yesterday says that the Swiss government has decided not to recognize the kingdom of Poland at this time.

VIRGINIA NEWS

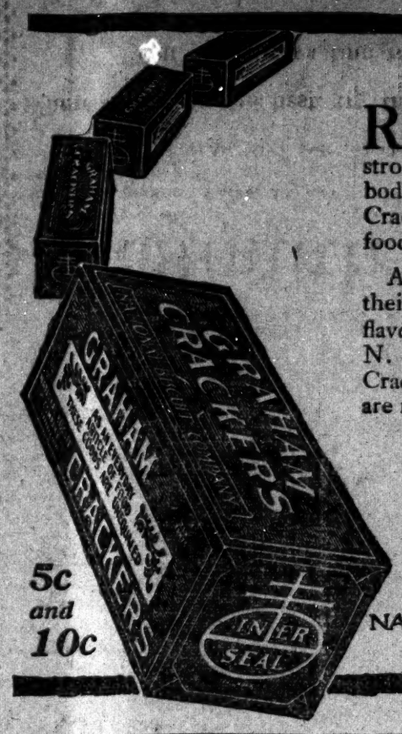
Paragraphs Picked Up Here and There Throughout the State.

After being in session seven busy and unusually harmonious days at the Broad Street Church, Richmond, the Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, closed at 11 o'clock last night with the singing of the Doxology after the appointments of preachers for the coming year had been read by Bishop John C. Kilgo. There will be fourteen appointments in Richmond served by new preachers. Rev. R. H. Potts, D. D., who has just completed four years as pastor of Monument Church succeeds Rev. T. McN. Simpson, D. D., as presiding elder of the Richmond District.

With the heavy earnings during the fiscal year ended June 30, resulting directly from an increased trainload and the use of improved equipment, the directors of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company yesterday declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 1-2 per cent. on the Common stock of the company payable to stockholders January 10. This payment, which places the common stock back on a 7 per cent basis, from which it was reduced to 5 per cent. about eighteen months ago, is in addition to a 2 1-2 per cent. dividend on the preferred stock of the Atlantic Coast Line, which was declared November 1.

Governor Stuart has appointed Frank B. Whiting, of Berryville, judge of the Seventeenth Virginia Judicial circuit, succeeding Judge Thomas W. Harrison, of Winchester, Congressman-elect from the Seventh Virginia district. The circuit comprises Frederick, Clarke, Shenandoah and Warren counties. Judge Whiting also was designated to preside over the Corporation Court of Winchester.

A grand jury of the Corporation Court of Charlottesville has returned five indictments against J. E. Adams former cashier of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway's freight office in Charlottesville, who was arrested in August in Baltimore, while attempting to leave the country. A large sum of money was found on him. An investigation followed and extensive peculations, it is alleged, were discovered. He was indicted for grand larceny and for forgery of checks which he used, it is said, to cover his thefts. The date of his trial has not been fixed and he remains in the city jail, being unable to furnish bail.



RICH in those elements that build strong, vigorous little bodies, N. B. C. Graham Crackers are a splendid food for children.

And youngsters love their nutty, oven-fresh flavor. Crisp and thin, N. B. C. Graham Crackers of themselves are most appetizing.

THE NEW TEMPERANCE DRINK

PABLO

"You Can't Tell the Difference"

That is what they all say regarding Pablo, the new non-alcoholic beverage we are now offering to the trade.

Pablo is an unfermented beverage does not contain malt and is absolutely non-alcoholic. It is not a near-beer and should not be confused with the many so-called temperance drinks now being marketed that are really nothing more than fermented malt beverages, with a percentage of the alcohol extracted, the sale of which is liable to be accompanied by risk of prosecution.

Wherever Pablo has been introduced it has met with almost instant favor and popularity, proving to be a good repeater. As compared with other soft drinks, Pablo is in a class by itself—a drink with character and snap to it. It is of a sparkling amber color and has that pleasing hop tang that is a never-failing, nevertiring delight to the taste and which at the same time makes it a refreshing healthful and invigorating beverage.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY

How the Southern Serves the South

THE Southern Railway, in the last ten years, spent more money in the South than it received from the South in revenues.

Gross revenues of the Southern for the last ten years amount to $620,485,074. Only $434,000,000 of this sum was collected from the South; the rest, $186,485,074, was collected outside the South.

In the same time, the Southern paid out in the South for wages and physical improvements and supplies the sum of $465,662,221.

Received from the South, $434,000,000
Expended in the South, 465,662,221

So the Southern Railway, in spite of its contribution to improved transportation facilities in the South, has given the South new money to the extent of $31,662,221 in ten years.

The Southern is more than a railway; it is an institution for the development of the South.
